- the matter has not been, and will not be, carried into effect;
- the taxpayer has not received, and will not receive, a benefit in respect of the matter; and

- 12 months after the cancellation day, which is broadly described in section 20(9B) of the Stamp Act as the day on which the contract is rescinded, annulled, abandoned or otherwise terminated without completion.

For all other instruments, including those that are cancelled prior to 4 September 2012, section 17 of the Taxation Administration Act 2003 provides that a person is not entitled to apply for a reassessment more than 5 years after the original assessment was made.
